Four Legends Honored by New York Building Congress

The New York Building Congress honored four industry legends at its 2017 Industry Recognition Gala Nov. 16, 2017, at the Grand Hyatt in Manhattan.

“The people of New York need housing, infrastructure and improved transportation and they need the design and construction industry to execute with strength,” said Sabrina Kanner, executive vice president of design and construction for Brookfield Property Partners, who received an Industry Recognition Award.

“We recognize that New York is a five borough city and we are so proud that we are doing work in every one of the five boroughs,” said Suri Kasirer, founder and president of Kasirer, who received an Industry Recognition Awards.

“It’s extremely rewarding to be part of an industry that gives its all every day to make New York great,” said Gregory A. Kelly, CEO of WSP USA, who also received an Industry Recognition Award.

“We will continue to work hard with all of you to do these projects faster, to innovate, to economize where possible, to deliver on time and on budget and to do it all in a way that respects customers, the environment, and communities in which we build,” said Rick Cotton, executive director of The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, who received The George A. Fox Public Service Award.
