

NEW YORK POST

September 23, 2015

POST FOCUS ON COMMERCIAL REAL ESTATE

Between Yom Kippur atonement and the Pope's visit this week, real estate charity is booming.

Eric Trump's 9th Annual ETF Golf Invitational & Auction Dinner — with a performance by Gilbert Gottfried and hosted by Elvis Duran — on Monday achieved a golf-event record of $1.7 million for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. The sum counts toward the $5 million the foundation plans to raise this year.

For a second year, Matthew Schmeelk of Kensington Vanguard National Land Services, Arvind Chary of Atlas Real Estate Partners and Daniel Rudin of Angelo, Gordon & Co. are rounding up commercial real estate executives for a sleepover-in-the-street at Covenant House in both New York and Los Angeles on Oct. 8 with a goal of raising $300,000 this year.

Last year, during breakout discussions with residents, a young Covenant House occupant asked Rudin about his first job, in a coffee shop in Minnesota.

The teen's eyes widened and he told Rudin, "I work at a coffee shop right now."

"He realized it doesn't mean he can't aspire for a better job," Rudin said.

"The experience I had last year was completely moving."

Also, the New York Building Foundation, the philanthropic arm of the New York Building Congress, has provided $15,000 to Sanctuary for Families to expand its Economic Empowerment Program to include an internship.

And finally, the Intrepid Fallen Heroes team biked six days, 14 hours and 39 minutes to win the grueling 3,000-mile Race Across America while raising more than $640,000 for the Intrepid Fallen Heroes Fund.

The team included Winston Fisher of Fisher Brothers, Evan "Chip" Marks of Sungate Asset Management, Brian Collins of Fisher Brothers and Jessica Lynn Marino of Instinet.

Mazel tov.

Lois@Betweenthebricks.com

More Between the Bricks at NYPOST.COM